SKETCH OF THE HISTORY OF THE LIBRARY.

THE first action taken in the direction of providing a Reading-room and Library in Christchurch was at a public meeting, held at the Oddfellows' Hall, Lichfield Street, on the 26th May, 1859, to take into consideration the best means of establishing a Mechanics' Institute. At a subsequent meeting held on the 9th June, 1859, trustees and officers were appointed, together with a committee. Certain rules were adopted for the working of the institution, and the committee was instructed to secure a site and building as soon as possible. The Institute was formally opened on the 4th of August, 1859. In the original plan of the city as laid out by the founders of the province, a valuable site had been reserved for the purpose of a Mechanics' Institute. A petition was presented to His Honour the Superintendent, praying for a site of ground upon which to erect a building for the use of the Institute. The Provincial Government, on the 29th May, 1861, agreed to offer a sum of money in lieu of a site for the Institute. The committee of the Institute purchased half-an-acre of land, being Sections Nos. 405 and 406, on the east side of the River Avon, fronting on Hereford Street and Cambridge Terrace, for the sum of £262 10s. The committee recommended that funds for a building should be raised by shares and subscriptions, the amount of the shares to be £5. Subsequently on the 10th December, 1862, the funds at the disposal of the committee were reported to be as follows: 130 shares, subscribed, at £5, £650; Government grant, £500: total, £1,150.

Out of this amount about £265 had been paid for the building-site, leaving a balance of £885. A recommendation was made that the sum of £800 be expended in finishing a portion of the main building, sufficient for immediate use. Eventually a tender was accepted at a total cost of £1,169 In February, 1868, the name of the institution was changed to that of the "Christchurch Literary Institute." On the 30th July, 1873, the Committee of the Institute met the Library Committee of the Board of Governors of Canterbury College. It was resolved that application be made to the Superintendent to introduce, and carry through the House of Assembly, a Bill giving powers to the Committee of the Literary Institute to transfer the property of the Institute to the Superintendent of the Province of Canterbury, for the purposes of a public circulating library and reading-room. On the 15th December, 1873, the Trustees of the Christchurch Literary Institute conveyed the half-acre of land at the corner of Hereford Street and Cambridge Terrace, with all buildings thereon, together with the books, furniture, chattels, and effects, to the Superintendent of Canterbury, "upon trust for the purpose of a public library, to be established and maintained under and in pursuance of the provisions of 'The Canterbury Museum and Library Ordinance, 1870,' subject nevertheless to the conditions expressed of and concerning the same—that is to say, that a reading-room and circulating library of at least equal dimensions, both as regards space and number of books and periodicals to those conveyed and assigned, shall be constantly maintained in the said buildings, or in any new buildings to be erected upon the said land in the place of the existing buildings, and that such books and periodicals shall from time to time be supplemented and increased, so as to satisfy future requirements, and generally the institution maintained in accordance with the usual and recognised standard of a public circulating library and reading-room; provided always that the Superintendent and his successors, or other the acting trustees of the institution continue to exercise the discretion enjoyed by the present management, of determining upon the books which shall be retained solely for reference; and that the advantages of such reading-room shall be opened to the public free of charge, and that the advantages of the circulating library shall be open to the public either free of charge, at the discretion of the management, or at charges not greater than the charges following—that is to say, 20s. per annum, payable either yearly, half-yearly, or quarterly, in advance." The Superintendent gave the control of the Library to the Board of Governors of Canterbury College in the year 1873. A contract was entered into by the Provincial Government in 1875 for the construction of a new wing to the Library. In 1876 the Provincial Council Library, consisting of 1,212 volumes, was transferred to the Public Library. His Excellency the Governor, in whom all public property was vested by the Abolition Act of 1876, conveyed by deed, bearing date, 25th July, 1878, the Public Library to the Board of Governors of the Canterbury College.

Before the control of the Public Library was transferred to the Board of Governors, a public subscription was got up for the purchase of books for the institution. The amount collected was £545 19s.; Mr. George Gould, £100; handed over by Canterbury Collegiate Union, £109 2s. 6d.; scrip transferred by owners, £175: total, £930 1s. 6d.

The total number of books at present in the Reference Department is about 10,465.
